A Note From The Teacher

The Superkids rub and scrub to make the old bus into their new clubhouse. This week's focus is on the letter Rr and the /r/ sound. We will also take a look at punctuation marks like the exclamation point. As we get better with blending letter sounds to read, we begin to read with inflection. The characters in a story are talking to each other and when we read, we will aim to read like we are talking. A sentence that ends with an exclamation point will sound differently than a sentence ending with a period or question mark. Punctuation also reminds us to pause and take a breath before continuing to read. Kindergarten Scientists explore the attributes of Nonliving things. In Math we will get crafty to review some of the skills we learned this year. The new sight words are put by

Reminders

Please review:

Writing - numbers, upper and lowercase letters

Sight words - see them, say them, write them

Blending - letter sounds to decode CVC words

Practice makes permanent!
